

THE BLACK GEM COLLECTION IS INSPIRED BY THE RARE BLACK GEMSTONES THAT HIDE DEEP BENEATH THE SOIL AND WATERS OF THE WEST INDIES
— WHERE THE VERY ESSENCE OF RUM WAS FIRST AWAKENED.

BLACK CORAL

Black Coral is a rare type of coral that can be found deep in the waters that surround the West Indies and Central America. It is a product of the fertile environment that also provides nourishment and minerals to the sugarcanes used in our 'Black Gem Collection'. Black Coral is valued for its unique color and elegant appearance. When properly polished black coral can achieve a beautiful shine and luster. Just like a glass A.H. Riise Black Coral served in a shiny tulip glass. Each batch, each bottle - a unique gem, marked with a number to state its singularity and rareness.

A.H. Riise Black Coral has an alcohol strength of ~~45.8%~~ 45.8% and is available in a limited quantity of ~~5,990~~ 5,990 numbered bottles, which makes this rare gem extremely collectible.

Nose	Subtle but alluring scent of dried fruit, high esters followed by fresh hay
Taste	Soft umami from oak envelops a sensation of roasted hazelnuts, dried stone fruit, and a very light hint of tobacco
Finish	Long lingering taste of oak and gentle tannins. Dried fruit peel and volatile spices
Color	Light, polished transparent amber
