A SIP OF SEAFARING HISTORY

Enjoying this blend means supporting the preservation of an iconic piece of Danish maritime heritage – the Frigate Jylland. As one of the world's largest and oldest wooden warships, it completed five voyages to the Danish West Indies between 1871 and 1887. According to legend, the crew received a daily ration of spirits from Albert Heinrich Riise himself. By 2025, sales of this blend had contributed over €23,000 toward the restoration of the historic museum ship.

Old St. Croix Royal Danish Navy - The Frigate Jylland is part of our Royal Danish Navy Collection – a series of blends composed from casks sourced from respected distilleries in the Caribbean and Central America. Slow fermentation and distillation provide depth and character, further refined through aging in both young and old oak casks. After maturation, the strength is gently reduced to 45% – just enough to stay the course and warm you right through to the captain's quarters. A smooth, characterful navy blend with history in every drop.

Here's to everyone with saltwater in their veins.

TASTING NOTES

Aroma	A dark and intense aroma of cigar boxes, caramel and chocolate, with a 'greener' layer at the top of grass and mint
Taste	Starts off mild, but intensifies with pineapple, honeydew melon, banana and a rich, evocative taste of milk chocolate
Finish	A shot of orange crunch followed by a lightly spiced conclusion
Color	Walnut
